

Sepultura

Celebrating Life Through Death Tour

Sepultura announce the final European dates of the 'Celebrating Life Through Death' farewell tour.

Brazilian metal pioneers Sepultura announce the final European dates of their monumental Farewell Tour, set to take place this summer. This final run will see the band perform at all major European festivals and conclude with their last-ever European performance at their own Sepulfest at the 3Arena in Dublin, alongside Biohazard, Malevolence, Sacred Reich, and Crypta.

This will be the last opportunity for fans across Europe to witness the band's final performances after four decades of groundbreaking music, cultural influence, and genre-defining evolution.

About:

After 4 decades, 14 gold records, and having traversed 80 countries and numerous diverse cultures, SEPULTURA has transcended into one of the most influential metal bands of our time, serving as Brazil's emissary to the rest of the world. With their latest opus, 'Quadra', an album that made a triumphant entry at number 5 on the German charts and garnered over seventeen million streams on Spotify, the band hailing from Belo Horizonte has once again spread the colours and rhythms of Brazil worldwide. However, in late 2023, they announced their plan to unite their forces for one final, powerful farewell tour, bidding adieu to a forty-year existence.

For this final journey, Sepultura has enlisted the prodigious 21-year-old American virtuoso, Greyson Nekrutman, as their new drummer and together, this quartet will soon embark on a 21-dates-strong pilgrimage along the North American roads alongside Obituary, Agnostic Front and Claustrofobia, presenting a career-spanning set to their fans that shall honor the forty years of Sepultura.

To date, the band has unleashed fifteen studio albums upon the world, having sold over 3 million units in the United States and twenty million worldwide, thus earning multiple gold and platinum records in various corners of the globe, including France, Australia, Indonesia, Cyprus, and their home country. To this day, their magnum opus, 'Roots', has been streamed a staggering 150 million times on Spotify.